Get Rid of UGLY PIMPLES this new easy way!

Amazing new medicated lotion developed by a doctor works wonders by clearing up complexion in one week or less!

DON'T let a bad complexion ruin romance, spoil your fun, cause you to be embarrassed, shy or ashamed. If you suffer from acne, the common external cause of pimples among young people, try this wonderfully effective medicated lotion that was developed by a practicing physician to clear up his own teen-ager's complexion after other methods had failed. It has produced astonishing results for many thousands of others. It is GUARANTEED to help you or it won't cost you a single cent!

Doesn't Show On Your Face

Keraplex is a skin-colored lotion (NOT a greasy salve or ointment!) that is quickly absorbed by the skin and gets right down in the pores where its healing and antiseptic ingredients can go to work. After you have applied it, there is no trace left on the surface. In fact, it makes a perfect powder base for girls and a refreshing after shaving lotion for men... actually improves the tone of the skin! It is pleasant and easy to use—leaving your skin soft, clean and fragrant.

Boys and girls—if you have pimples on your shoulders or back, you can avoid embarrassment when they are exposed to view. For Keraplex keeps your shoulders, arms, back and chest wonderfully free from pimples—without soiling clothes, without messiness or greasiness!

Works in SIX Out of SEVEN Cases!

An analysis of RESULTS taken from actual case histories proves that Keraplex is successful in clearing up six of every seven cases of externally caused blackheads and pimples. It tones up the complexion generally, giving it a healthy, radiant glow.

Try This New Method Without Risking A Penny!

Keraplex is GUARANTEED to clear up your skin troubles or there will be NO COST to you whatsoever. If yours happens to be the ONE extra-stubborn case out of seven which Keraplex cannot help in one short week, it will cost you nothing to have tried it. Keraplex is sent to you with that simple, positive GUARANTEE!

SEND NO MONEY

You need send no money with the coupon below. When postman delivers your Keraplex lotion (in plain wrapper marked "Personal"), deposit with him only the modest price indicated below, plus a few cents postage. Then use your Keraplex morning and night for a full week, following the simple directions which will be enclosed.

If you do not SEE RESULTS that delight you—if you are not fully convinced that Keraplex is clearing up your complexion—just return the empty bottle or unused portion and the purchase price will be refunded in full. Don't delay a single day. The longer you let your skin troubles go, the more difficult it will be to clear them up and get your complexion back to a healthy, clear, unblemished condition! Clip and mail the coupon TODAY, Underwood Laboratories, Inc., Stratford, Conn.

BAD BOY

"JUST once more, Richard Carlton, Junior," Dickie's mother pointed her finger at him. "Just once more I catch you running around, fighting and getting yourself all dirty, and you'll really be punished."

Dickie looked forlornly at the floor. "But, Mom . . . we didn't do anything. Honestly we didn't. Jimmy and I were just playing . . . sort of . . . that's all."

"Then why did you come home with your best pants all ripped?" his mother asked.

"Jimmy started it!"

"Jimmy started what?"

"The fight . . ."

"AH-HA!" his mother said, finally getting at the truth. "Then you were fighting!"

"Ah . . ." Dickie finally realized that there was no getting out of it this time. He had admitted himself that Jimmy and he had had a fight. "Yes," he answered.

His mother lectured him very hard. And all the time, Dickie sat there feeling not so much sorry that he had started the fight, but even sorer that he had ripped his pants so that his mother had to find out about it.

But he did remember one thing in particular about her lecture . . . she said that if it happened just once more . . . he'd really be sorry. And Dickie certainly knew she was telling the truth.

But Dickie was certainly not the kind of a fellow who would go around running from a fight. "After all," he thought bitterly,

"Jimmy had called me a 'sissy', and if you couldn't fight about that . . . there isn't anything worth fighting about."

"But I really will try to be good, Mom," he said to his mother after she had finished scolding him. "I'll try awful hard."

"That's all I wanted you to say, Dickie," his mother told him. "And see if you can keep your clothes in good condition too, will you?"

"Yes, ma'am," Dickie said.

And Dickie really had every intention of doing that . . . and being very good for the next few days. At least just as long as Jimmy didn't bother him any more.

That was Wednesday, and Thursday and Friday, Dickie behaved as if he had just won a gold medal for the most perfect boy in school. His mother had put clean clothes on him every morning, and every day after school he had come home without one thing he was wearing being mussed up.

His mother and father were very proud of him, and he was very proud of himself. He was even prouder on Saturday when he came in from playing and his mother and father told him what they had decided.

"Since you've been so good, son," his father said, "we've decided possibly you're ready for that brand-new bicycle you admired in Goodner's window the other day when we were downtown."

"Oh golly, dad . . ." Dickie couldn't believe his own ears. "You mean I'm really going to get it? Boy . . . thanks."

"Yes, you're really going to get it, if . . ."

Dickie's breath almost stopped as he waited for the big "if" to come.

" . . . if you stay good until Goodner's opens on Monday morning."

"Swell," Dickie certainly didn't have any worries about that. After all, he'd been able to be just exactly the kind of son his mother and father wanted him to be for four days now. He should absolutely be able to keep it up until the next night.

"Gee," was all he could finally say. And that night his dreams were all full of him racing that new bicycle down Elm Street and beating every other fellow on the block . . . especially Jimmy.

Sunday morning came bright and clear, and Dickie leaped out of bed, full of zip, vaguely wondering how he could be sure to get through the day without any trouble. He had his heart set on that bicycle, and even if he had to sit in the chair and look at television all day long, he was going to get it.

After breakfast, his mother said, "Are you going to get dressed today, Dickie?"

Dickie looked down at his pajamas and bathrobe, and although he really didn't want to very much, he said, "Sure, I s'pose."

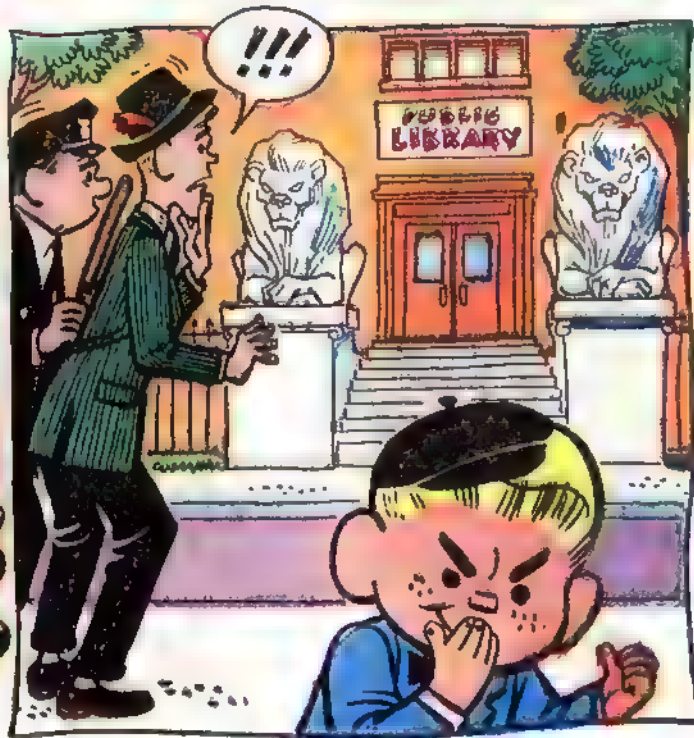

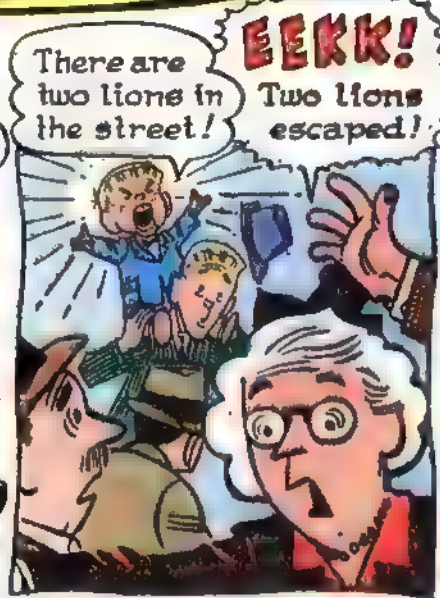

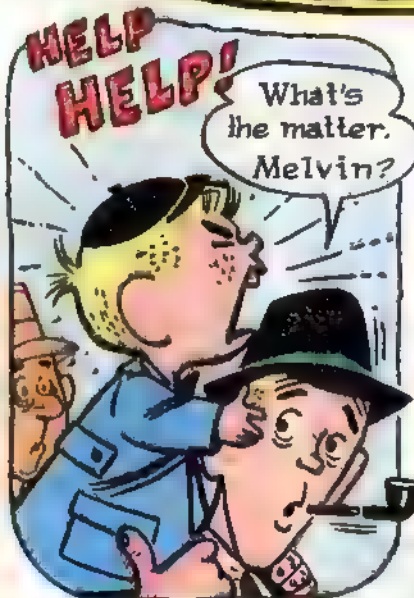

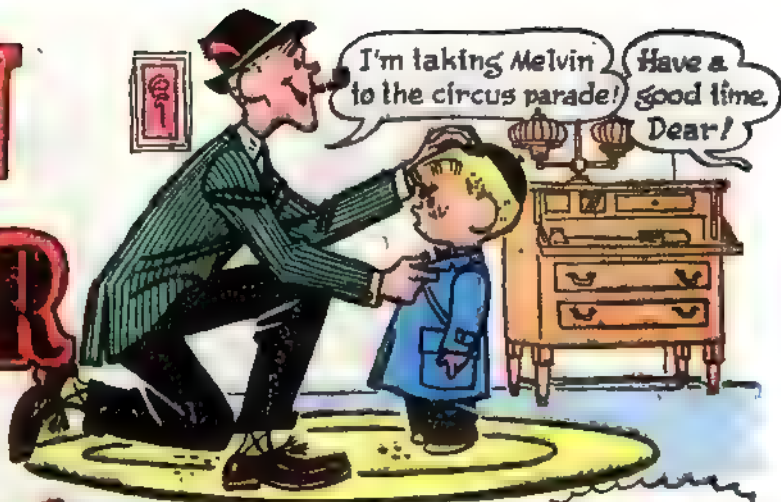

"Maybe you'd like to wear

the brand-new shirt that I just made for you," his mother suggested.

"Oh, SURE!" Dickie had been waiting to wear it for the last week.

"I suppose, if you put it on, you'll be very careful when you go out to play later," his mother warned.

"Boy, I'll say I will," Dickie shouted. "I wouldn't take any chances on that bike!"

"I don't want you to take any chances on that new shirt either," his mother glared at him. And she went to the closet and took it out.

Dickie ran upstairs and put on his best pants, the pair without the rip, and quickly stuck his arms through the sleeves. He gave himself a quick glance in his mirror, and decided that the new shirt was quite the best-fitting shirt he owned. Then he ran downstairs to show it off to his mother.

"Look," he shouted, "doesn't it look super?"

"Sure does," his mother agreed. "Now go outside and play, but remember just one dirty spot and . . . no bike."

"I'll remember," Dickie added pretty quickly. ". . . no bike!"

Things went along pretty quietly for the first few minutes Dickie was outside, and then he looked up and saw Jimmy wandering down the street right toward him.

It was too late to get up and go inside again . . . Jimmy had already seen him. For one crazy minute, Dickie wondered whether maybe he ought to run inside the house anyway, and the thought of the bicycle almost made him do it. But then he saw the bully grin on Jimmy's face and new shirt or not, Dickie knew that he had to stay and see it through.

"Ya . . . ya . . . ya," Jimmy started, and Dickie knew that he was in for it. "Look at the sisy shirt little Dickie has on . . ."

A flare of anger flashed up in Dickie's eyes. "It is not!" he yelled. "My mother just made it for me . . ."

"Sissy shirt, sissy shirt," Jimmy kept on yelling, and dancing closer and closer to where Dickie sat on the steps.

Dickie tried to get away, he really did, but Jimmy was too quick for him. "Sissy . . ." and Jimmy made a quick lunge for Dickie's sleeve. Just then Dickie backed away, and all in the same motion, he found his shirt sleeve ripped right away and stared where it had fallen down over his hand.

"Why, you . . ." was all he could say, and even by the time he got that out, Jimmy had already run down the street.

Well, there was nothing for him to do but to go inside and face the music. He could say good-bye to the bicycle and say hello to another great big scolding.

"Mom," he called very softly, and just then his mother came in from the living room. Dickie held up his arm, with the torn shirt sleeve still hanging from it, and his face was the picture of sadness.

His mother, instead of being angry, smiled at him.

"Don't say a word," she started to say, "I saw it all from the living room window, and I'm very proud of you, Dickie."

"But the shirt sleeve . . ." Dickie said.

His mother looked over the seam very carefully, and then she laughed. "I guess that's my fault, Dickie. I just forgot to sew it up properly in the first place. It'll only take a minute to do it."

"Then you don't care . . ." Dickie could hardly believe it.

"No, honey . . . I'd have to sew it up sooner or later anyway . . . and don't worry about not getting the bicycle. I think you still deserve it."

Before Dickie could even thank his mother, the doorbell rang, and she went to answer it. Dick peeked around the corner of the hall to see who it was, and no one was more surprised to see little Jimmy standing there.

Jimmy saw him too, and tears started to come into his eyes when he looked at Dickie's mother and said, "I'm sorry, Mrs. Carlton. Really I am."

Jimmy's fists brushed the tears away, and then he said, "I really didn't mean to make Dickie mad." He turned to look around at his little friend and say, "I really like your shirt. I'll never call you a sissy again."

"Why don't you boys shake hands with each other and be friends?" Mrs. Carlton suggested.

"O.K." Jimmy said, and held out his hand. "You're no sissy."

"And you're no bully, either," Dickie said smiling.

"And neither one of you are bad boys at all," Dickie's mother laughed.
